

AUSSIE DOCTOR ON HIS DAILY ROUNDS IN THE HOSPITAL WARD WITH A NURSE. HE GETS TO HIS NEXT PATIENT'S BED. THE PATIENT IS A FRAIL OLD MAN WITH HIS LEG IN A PLASTER CAST.

DOC

G'Day mate. How's your leg this morning?

PATIENT

Oh it's ok.

AUSSIE DOC HOLDS UP THE X-RAY

DOC

Are you sure? According to this X-ray it's broken in three places!

PATIENT

Yes, but. I already knew that.

DOC (Impressed)

And you still think it's OK!? You're a brave old bastard!

No worries though mate, I've got just the thing for you. Nurse, put this man on 10cc's of Rum 4 times a day.

So how did it happen? Were you on a pub crawl?

PATIENT

I'm 94 years old! I don't go on pub crawls!

DOC

That's a shame. You should think about starting. It'd be good exercise.

PATIENT

I don't think I'd have the energy.

DOC

No energy!? Nurse, increase this man's Rum dosage to 20cc's and make sure he's always got a fresh beer in the fridge.

Now say Aaah please.

PATIENT

Aaaah.

DOC

Put your back into it mate! Pretend you're drunk.

PATIENT

Aaaaah!

DOC

More drunk than that!

PATIENT

Aaaaahhhh!!

DOC

All right. Be honest now, how much alcohol do you drink in an average week?

PATIENT

A few glasses of Wine. Why?

DOC

Is that all?! Mr Smith, I regret to inform you that you're suffering from a condition known as Chronic Pommie lightweight syndrome!

PATIENT

Blimey!

DOC

And you still have a broken leg.

PATIENT

Is it serious?

DOC

It should heal. But your triple jumping days are over.

PATIENT

No! I meant the Pommie chronic syndrome thingy!

DOC

Oh right! Well luckily I think we caught it just in time. Do you have anyone you'd like me to call? A wing-man or a drinking buddy?

PATIENT

Are you going to prescribe more alcohol?

DOC

Now I know what you're thinking. If I prescribe too much alcohol, you're worried you'll become immune to its positive effects.

PATIENT

No I'm not! I'm thinking you're an idiot and I want a second opinion.

DOC

I see. Ok mate, I've just one more question for ya. Does it hurt when I do this?

DOC PUNCHES PATIENT IN FACE.

PATIENT

Owww!!