

INT. IAN'S LOUNGE.

Ian is sat in a chair reading a book when Steve walks in.

STEVE

Alright mate. What are you reading?

IAN

Lance Armstrong's autobiography.

STEVE

Cool. Have you got to the bit where he lands on the moon?

IAN

What?

STEVE

Oh sorry mate! Did I just ruin the ending?

IAN

No. You're thinking of Neil Armstrong. This book is about LANCE Armstrong.

STEVE

Ah Gotcha! The Six million dollar man.

IAN

No. Now you're thinking of Steve Austin. Lance Armstrong is the guy who won the Tour de France seven times.

STEVE

Right. Seven times! Blimey, those bionic legs must be amazing!

IAN

Lance Armstrong doesn't have bionic legs! I mean they're pretty good legs, but they're not bionic!

STEVE

So, who has bionic legs then?

IAN

No one does! No one has bionic legs! They're a made up thing!

STEVE

Right.

IAN
You don't understand do you?

STEVE
Not really.

IAN
You're thinking of the Six million dollar man, Steve Austin, and he's a fictional character! He doesn't actually exist.

STEVE
He doesn't exist!? So they wasted Six million dollars of tax payers money on nothing!? No wonder George Bush is so unpopular.

IAN
That's it! I've had enough. Steve go away, go and annoy someone else.

STEVE Awww!

Steve jumps off the screen in slow motion with the bionic man sound effects playing. Ian looks on in amazement.